Place de la Résistance

At the mouth of the coastal river of Gouet, a port in the past oriented towards large-scale fishing, has evolved towards pleasure and commercial activities. Restricted by its bay head position in the line of the powerful tide, the Légué port was built from the desire of the boat-builders to gain even more access to the sea. Follow the quays and lift your gaze. On both sides of the marina, the maritime history reveals itself little by little.

1 PLACE DE LA RÉSISTANCE PLÉRIN LE LÉGUÉ

Parking in the car park

At the end of the promenade, pretty facades of coloured houses nestled against the cliffs. Gourmand locations and cafés with terraces. To the left of the square (map) a passage in a paved courtyard gives access to the oldest house in Légué, turned into a pottery workshop.

Open from Tuesday to Saturday in the afternoons. Exhibitions on the first floor in July and August. Free

2 THE HOUSE OF MARIE BALAVENNE

Walk along the quays to the church.
200 metres from the Rue des 2 Frères Durand.

The timber framed house bears a date on a round arched stone. At the end of the paved courtyard opposite, the semi-detached houses were home to the first charity school run by the "white sisters". They became the Congregation of the Sisters of the Holy Spirit in the 18th century.

Go back down to the quays via the Rue Pierre Méheust.

3 THE STONE BRIDGE

This bridge to cross the river has known several lives. Originally made of wood and rebuilt in stone, it physically marks the limit between the wild river upstream and the channelled water downstream. It is also an administrative limit between Saint-Brieuc and Plérin! Stunning view of the marina. Right bank, the Maison de la Providence displays a beautiful wrought-iron gate: cherubs and horns in abundance.

Go back up the right bank.

4 LE CARRÉ ROSENGART

Cross the street to go to the Saint-Brieuc side, and enter the building through the glass gable.

You are in the renovated part of what was the largest industrial space in Saint-Brieuc in the 20th century: the Rosengart factories (where the outboard motor was developed!) and Chaffoteaux & Maury. The glazing workshops, screw manufacturer, and sheet metalworker which made the reputation of the wall-mounted gas boilers throughout France, have given way to businesses, collaborative working spaces, conference and exhibition rooms, restaurant... Amateur sailors will find here careening areas and different services (water and electricity points, lifting equipment, supplies shop...). Industrial architecture with bricks and granite in masonry; framework in wood and metal.

5 PARC DE ROHANNEC'H

Leave the Carré Rosengart and re-join the walk along the quays.

A wooded area stretches out to the right of the quays: the Parc de Rohannec'h. A departmental site open to the public (opening hours on the entrance gate near to the road).

A 500 metre long path allows you to go up to the villa of an old ship-owner of the port then to the town centre of Saint-Brieuc (30 min walk). Panorama of the port.

6 TURNING BRIDGE

Cross and arrive at the Place de la Résistance.

GOURMAND BREAK ON YOUR ROUTE...

Portland trattoria and coffee
Tearoom, high quality bakery
Open every day except Monday.

Walk along the quays on the right bank.

You will cross the Gouédic stream, a small affluent of the Gouet which gave its name to the large central valley of Saint-Brieuc.

Access the signposted path to return to the town centre (30 min) going back up the Boulevard de la Mer for 200 m to the left.

8 NAVAL REPAIRS AREA

The Guales de Mezaubran water area borders the ship repair area and the fishing boat repair quay. Freight products in transit are stored on the quays: timber, sand...

Larger fishing and yachting units will find a painting cabin and a crane able to lift up to 350 tonnes.

Continue to the locks.

View of the hill of Cesson and the remains of the medieval tower in line with the grounding port.

Retrace your steps and cross the turning bridge to return to the Place de la Résistance.
